Find a tile in seconds

This volume is built like a material reference book, not a conventional store flyer. Every design concept has a printed page number, an online reference and a color code. The color matrix at the back lets you jump to a particular combination, including a tile listed on page 072.

01

CHOOSE THE FORMAT

Square, Bejmat, Hexagon, Diamond, Star, Arabesque and eleven other format families. See the section directory on page 004.

02

SELECT THE COLOR

The ZELLIGE-COL-0001 to 0030 palette begins on page 025. These codes are internal design identifiers, not supplier swatch numbers.

FIND THE EXACT PAGE

Each of the 480 shape/color combinations has a fixed page number; the color-to-shape matrices on pages 131-132 find them all.

TRUTH IN SOURCING

A catalogue reference is a design enquiry. It does not establish finished inventory, a factory relationship, a fixed size, a certified performance rating or a final selling price. The product image is an editorial architectural reference, not the physical tile ordered.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 01

Clay, fire and measured irregularity.

WHAT IS ZELLIGE?

Zellige - also written zellij or zillij - describes a Moroccan ceramic craft tradition closely associated with hand-cut glazed earthenware and geometric mosaics. Its enduring appeal comes from the dialogue between an artisanal surface and rigorous composition.

01 A MATERIAL WITH MEMORY

The visible result is rarely uniform. Small shifts in glaze, edge, surface and reflection make a field of individual pieces behave like a single living material. Traditional decorative panels often combine multiple hand-cut geometric units.

02 AN ARCHITECTURAL LANGUAGE

Moroccan courtyards, fountains, walls and historic decorative interiors demonstrate how tile can organize space through line, rhythm and color. Contemporary designers also use restrained square fields and simple brick patterns.

03 OUR ROLE

Zellige Atelier is a project-sourcing studio. The concepts in this catalogue are design directions. We assess appropriate independent workshops after receiving an RFQ; no illustrated color or cutting pattern is automatically available.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

The right brief starts with a surface, a size intention, a color direction and a realistic need for supplier sampling.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 02

From clay to composition.

A CRAFT PROCESS

Authentic zellige making is labor-intensive. Methods differ among workshops, so this sequence explains the traditional craft broadly rather than certifying any specific maker.

01 01 PREPARE THE BODY

Locally appropriate clay is prepared, shaped and dried. Clay composition, moisture and firing practice affect the body, porosity, size and strength.

02 02 FIRE AND GLAZE

Ceramic bodies are fired and finished according to the artisan method. Glaze chemistry and placement within a kiln can create subtle or pronounced changes in tone and sheen.

03 03 CUT AND ASSEMBLE

For decorative zellij, skilled artisans shape individual pieces for exact repeating geometry and assemble them into a coherent field. Not every product sold as a Moroccan tile follows this traditional cut-tile method.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Ask suppliers for photos of the real process and physical tile samples when authenticity or provenance matters to your specification.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 03

Imperfection is a specification issue.

HANDMADE CHARACTER

Handcrafted surfaces may show variation in dimensions, planar flatness, edges, chips, surface texture, glaze thickness or tonal movement. These characteristics should be understood and agreed before procurement, not discovered during installation.

01 EXPECTED BEAUTY

A face may be subtly irregular and light may reflect differently from tile to tile. That is an important part of the visual language of handmade ceramics.

02 LIMITS AND ACCEPTANCE

Natural variation does not excuse every defect. Agree acceptance criteria with your supplier - sample ranges, allowable chipped edges, thickness spread, breakage replacement and visual range.

03 BEFORE FIXING

The installer should inspect and blend pieces from several cartons before installation. Confirm substrate, adhesive, edge protection and joint method using supplier instructions and local project standards.

Do not assume that one small sample reproduces the complete visual range of a future batch.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 04

Four related ways of building surface.

MATERIAL COMPARISON

The market uses terms inconsistently. Shape, raw versus glazed surface, method of manufacture, thickness, installation use and test data are more reliable than a label alone.

01 SQUARE ZELLIGE

A square face gives a clean modular grid. Traditional production may involve individual cutting, and walls are a common application. Exact floor suitability is product-specific.

02 BEJMAT

Bejmat commonly describes a rectangular Moroccan clay tile, frequently used in herringbone and running bond. Both glazed and unglazed versions exist; the finish alone does not define the family.

03 MOSAIC AND TERRACOTTA

A geometric mosaic is a composition made from smaller pieces; terracotta emphasizes the fired-clay body and may have different sealing requirements. Distinguish hand-cut units from mesh-backed or factory-calibrated alternatives.

Request a product-specific material declaration instead of assuming that all Moroccan tiles perform identically.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 05

The case for a deliberate material.

WHY ZELLIGE

Where uniform ceramic is designed to disappear, handmade zellige often creates subtle movement. Its best use is intentional: enough light, enough visible area and a restrained surrounding palette let the material speak.

01 LIVING COLOR

Small tonal shifts catch daylight and artificial lighting differently. This can soften large blocks of color and give a wall dimensional depth without heavy ornament.

02 TACTILE IDENTITY

Edges and surface movement add human scale to kitchens, bathrooms, hospitality interiors and feature zones. Natural finishes can pair well with timber, limestone and plaster.

03 DESIGN LONGEVITY

A simple square field or carefully resolved geometric border can support many interior styles. Long-term success still depends on correct product selection, installation quality and maintenance.

Specify the atmosphere you want before choosing a color chip: lively, quiet, luminous, earthy or patterned.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 06

Kitchens and backsplashes.

APPLICATION STUDY 01

A splashback is among the most approachable ways to appreciate subtle surface differences: the area is visible, lighting changes over the day and the field is usually vertical.

01 WHERE IT WORKS VISUALLY

Use squares for quiet walls, elongated rectangles for directional lines, or carefully designed mosaics in focal niches. Deep greens and cobalt tones emphasize reflection; pale whites reveal texture.

02 PRACTICAL QUESTIONS

Review grout spacing, staining, cleaning around cooking zones, extraction, adhesives and transitions at counters or windows. Untested porous pieces need special scrutiny.

03 DRAWINGS TO SUBMIT

Include the countertop material, backsplash height, socket locations, corner returns, exposed edge treatment, approximate area and the desired pattern orientation.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Confirm manufacturer-specific cleaning and sealing instructions; never prescribe the same product for every finish.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 07

Bathrooms and wet zones.

APPLICATION STUDY 02

Humidity, water exposure and chemical cleaners make bathrooms more demanding than decorative wall areas. A beautiful tile is not automatically a tested shower or pool tile.

01 SHOWER WALLS

Review waterproof membrane systems, joint design and movement accommodation with an experienced installer. Ask the supplier to approve the intended wet-wall use in writing.

02 SHOWER FLOORS

Barefoot slip resistance, slope, drainage, edge comfort and surface exposure are critical. Do not assume a glossy, hand-cut decorative tile is safe underfoot.

03 CLEANING AND PROTECTION

Check porosity, glaze crazing, grout, sealing recommendations and compatibility with household cleaners. Confirm local codes and project requirements.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

For any permanent immersion, shower floor or high-slip-risk condition: source a specifically suitable and documented product.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 08

Floors and circulation.

APPLICATION STUDY 03

Floor procurement must start with evidence, not a styling photograph. Foot traffic, slip risk, load, cleaning frequency and substrate movement all determine whether a handmade ceramic is appropriate.

01 ASK THE RIGHT QUESTIONS

Is this a residential bedroom, a busy entrance, a commercial lobby or a wet barefoot floor? Each requires a different technical basis for selection.

02 DESIGN POSSIBILITIES

Appropriately specified bejmat or terracotta can offer a warm and tactile effect. A mosaic pattern may be visually appropriate yet still unsuitable without performance documentation.

03 APPROVE DETAILS

Seek written use approval, actual thickness, variation range, edge comfort, slip data where relevant, substrate preparation and product-compatible setting materials.

Never treat a catalogue color or shape concept as certification for a floor.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 09

Commercial and hospitality.

APPLICATION STUDY 04

Hotels, restaurants, spas and retail spaces can benefit from distinctive Moroccan ceramic surfaces, especially as wayfinding elements or memorable focal points. Commercial projects also demand stronger documentation.

01 CREATE AN IDENTITY

Architectural entry panels, bar backdrops, reception walls and decorative borders can carry a clear visual narrative while preserving a consistent brand material palette.

02 DESIGN FOR OPERATION

Review cleaning protocols, replacement stock, access panels, public touch zones, maintenance contracts, load and local compliance requirements.

03 PLAN SCALE EARLY

Large projects should review mockups, consistency between batches, workshop capacity, packing, logistics and inspection milestones before deposits are requested.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Share plans, elevations, specifications and a realistic approval calendar with each formal RFQ.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 10

Exterior and climate exposure.

APPLICATION STUDY 05

Outdoor use is not automatically safe for every earthenware tile. Repeated water exposure, frost, solar heating, salt and thermal movement can make exterior conditions very different from interior walls.

01 CLIMATE AND EXPOSURE

Document freeze-thaw risk, direct rainfall, immersion, salt spray, UV exposure and the type of mounting surface. Ask for evidence relevant to those exact conditions.

02 DETAILING MATTERS

Proper slopes, drainage, waterproofing, compatible mortar and movement joints belong to the design of the assembly, not merely to the individual tile.

03 NO BLANKET PROMISE

Do not rely on an attractive outdoor precedent to guarantee performance. A specific product, installation system and written supplier approval are required.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Request technical evidence before specifying terracotta or glazed zellige for exterior or freezing climates.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 11

A disciplined decorative vocabulary.

THE GEOMETRY OF PATTERN

Geometric zellige is more than a surface print: individual units may be assembled into a carefully resolved repeating composition. Color, scale, grout and edge construction are part of the pattern.

01 FIELD VERSUS ACCENT

Keep large planes visually calm and reserve star or interlaced motifs for borders, niches and focal surfaces if a restrained atmosphere is desired.

02 PATTERN ACCURACY

Provide exact drawings. A reference image alone may not convey the tile count, line thickness, closure at corners or transition into adjacent materials.

03 TRADITIONAL AND NEW FORMS

Eight-point stars and cut-tile panels relate to a rich Moroccan vocabulary. Chevron, scallop or picket shapes are treated in this catalogue as contemporary custom enquiries unless a supplier confirms them.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

A strong decorative composition starts with a measured repeat and a clear rule for how edges and corners terminate.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 12

A digital chip is not a ceramic glaze.

COLOUR INTELLIGENCE

The thirty color directions in Zellige Atelier use internal identifiers from ZELLIGE-COL-0001 to 0030. They provide a stable language for enquiries, not a claim to a shared Moroccan supplier numbering standard.

01 DIGITAL LIMITATIONS

Screen calibration, lighting and display technology make HEX color approximations unreliable as production standards.

02 PHYSICAL SAMPLE APPROVAL

Request current workshop samples or a sufficiently representative batch board. View samples under the lighting conditions that approximate the actual project.

03 BATCH REALITY

Even an approved sample may differ from another production run. Agree tolerances, range photos and the acceptance approach in writing before purchasing.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Keep the internal code and the eventual workshop code side by side on project documents to prevent confusion.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 13

Measure, never assume.

SIZE, TOLERANCE & CALIBRATION

Nominal sizes can differ by maker, production method and degree of hand cutting. The concept listings in this book do not provide guaranteed dimensions because no supplier has yet verified them.

01 SPECIFY QUANTITIES CLEARLY

Use square feet or square metres for area, plus piece counts where the layout requires special shapes. State nominal tile dimensions if essential to the design.

02 RANGE INSTEAD OF A SINGLE NUMBER

Ask for actual sample dimensions, thickness, bow, edge irregularity and minimum and maximum tolerances relevant to your installation.

03 COMPLEX UNITS

Mosaics, special shapes and borders need drawings that show joint widths and how each element meets the next. A wrong proportion can defeat an otherwise beautiful pattern.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Do not convert a visual concept into a production order until geometry, finish and sample range are agreed.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 14

Bring the trade team into the brief.

INSTALLER HANDOFF

Handmade material is not always installed like large-format calibrated porcelain. A technically capable installer should review the real tile before placement and confirm the build-up.

01 SUBSTRATE

Confirm flatness, cure state, waterproofing where needed, movement joints and appropriate setting materials. Follow the final supplier requirements.

02 MOCKUP

Prepare a small dry layout or installed mockup showing mixed tones, grout choice, edges, corners and critical transitions.

03 DOCUMENTATION

The installer should receive delivered product details, sample approval record, maintenance guidance and any specific cautions on glaze, sealing or joints.

A well-managed mockup reduces disagreement about natural variation, alignment and grout character.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 15

The detail is the design.

JOINTS & FINISHING

In handcrafted tilework, joints are part of the overall surface language. Neither a photograph nor an online listing defines the correct grout joint for a future product.

01 JOINT SELECTION

Consult the tile supplier and installer on grout type, width, color, cure, sealing and compatibility with the tile surface.

02 CUTTING & TERMINATIONS

Agree exposed edges, corners, trims, shelves, fixtures, penetrations and transitions before ordering. Some shapes require dedicated infill pieces.

03 INSPECTION CHECKPOINTS

Examine representative cartons at delivery, check compatibility with the approved sample range and document any breakage before installation.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Avoid generic one-size-fits-all instructions; follow the confirmed tile and assembly specifications.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 16

A good surface should age thoughtfully.

CARE AND LONGEVITY

Cleaning instructions depend on whether tile is glazed or unglazed, its porosity, finish and joint system. The wrong chemical or abrasive process can compromise the surface.

01 START GENTLY

Use manufacturer-approved mild cleaning where applicable. Avoid harsh acidic or abrasive agents unless the supplying workshop explicitly permits them.

02 SEALING IS NOT UNIVERSAL

Unglazed earthenware and certain porous surfaces may need treatment; some glazed surfaces have different requirements. Never assume all products must be sealed in the same way.

03 RECORD THE FINISH

Keep the supplier care guide, batch information and spare tiles for future maintenance. Discuss the intended cleaning regime before approving the specification.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Request specific written maintenance advice for the tile and grout combination you actually purchase.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 17

Translate a surface into a reliable quantity.

HOW MUCH TILE?

Architects often begin with a plan area, then refine quantities after selecting the actual module, pattern, grout joint and edge conditions. A preliminary number is only an estimating aid.

01 AREA CALCULATION

A rectangular surface area is length multiplied by height. One square metre equals approximately 10.764 square feet; conversions are useful when a U.S. project is coordinated with a Moroccan workshop.

02 ALLOWANCE FOR CUTS

Waste depends on pattern complexity, corners, cutouts, irregular dimensions and breakage. Ask the installer and supplier to agree a project-specific allowance rather than relying on a universal percentage.

03 PATTERN MATERIALS

Stars, borders and multi-shape mosaics may require piece-by-piece schedules, not merely a square-area total. Request a cutting list or shop drawing where appropriate.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

In the RFQ, give both a measured net area and any allowance proposed by the installer; confirm the final order quantity in writing.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 18

From design reference to written offer.

THE SOURCING WORKFLOW

This catalogue offers a sourcing path for buyers who do not yet have direct relationships with Moroccan workshops. Each concept starts as an enquiry and must be made commercially real through verification.

01 1 BRIEF AND SHORTLIST

Select a reference, describe the finish and send plans, quantity, application, destination and requested timing.

02 2 WORKSHOP AND SAMPLES

We look for a suitable independent supplier, assess production feasibility, request current product information and coordinate samples if available.

03 3 WRITTEN QUOTATION

Only after checks do we specify product, likely variation, pricing, lead time, packing, shipping responsibilities, balance terms and quotation validity.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

An RFQ is not an order. Procurement starts only after a written offer has been accepted under agreed payment and delivery terms.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 19

No stock promises. No checkout shortcuts.

PAYMENT & COMMERCIAL TERMS

Zellige Atelier uses a quote-before-order model. Nothing in the design catalogue should be interpreted as a public sale price or a promise to ship a finished stock item.

01 QUOTATION IS FREE

A project request does not trigger a charge. We first examine the product brief and feasibility with a suitable supplier.

02 AFTER APPROVAL

Once the client accepts a written quotation, a 50% advance payment is required before goods are dispatched. The accepted quote must specify when that advance becomes due, how the remaining balance is settled and what conditions apply.

03 WRITTEN CLARITY

A confirmed quotation should list product/specification, quantity, accepted variations, price, currency, packaging, named shipping arrangement, dispute procedure and relevant dates.

KEY PROJECT PRINCIPLE

Payment instructions, remaining balance and delivery responsibilities are stated in the confirmed quotation. Avoid sending funds against an informal image or catalogue reference.

MATERIAL GUIDE / 20

From atelier to destination.

EXPORT & HANDLING

International shipments involve more than tile production. Packaging, inspection, freight choice, insurance, customs and final delivery responsibilities should be defined before an order is accepted.

01 PACKING AND BREAKAGE

Ask how fragile handmade ceramics are counted, protected, palletized, marked and checked. Agree who handles breakage and replacement shortages.

02 COMMERCIAL HANDOFF

Clarify what transport leg the quoted price includes, who books shipping, how claims are documented and who is importer of record. Use a mutually understood written delivery term.

03 UNITED STATES COORDINATION

The importer should validate applicable duties, taxes, product declarations and local project requirements with a licensed customs professional where appropriate.

Schedules, customs treatment, freight rates and final delivery terms remain project-specific and are never guaranteed by this catalogue.

An understated field of light reflections, often visually effective for kitchen and bathroom walls.

DIRECTIONAL

Bejmat / Slim / Long Rectangle

Running bonds, stacks and herringbone-oriented concepts with a clear architectural rhythm.

GEOMETRIC

Hexagon / Diamond / Triangle / Octagon

A structured repeat; requires coordinated shapes, a measured grid and precise edge termination.

ORNAMENTAL

Star & Cross / Eight-Point Star

Detailed compositions for decorative panels, borders and focal zones.

CONTEMPORARY CUSTOM

Chevron / Fish Scale / Arabesque / Picket

Design-intent silhouettes subject to specialist workshop cutting capability.

THE ZELLIGE ATELIER COLLECTION

500 references.

One sourcing dialogue.

Sixteen shape families and thirty color directions form a clear 480-reference design grid. Twenty additional editorial and pattern studies complete this 500-entry material library.

THE INDEX RULE

Each numbered product entry has a printed page and a website link. A SKU uniquely identifies the tile concept; its ZELLIGE-COL identifier denotes a shared color direction. This is not a supplier inventory list.

A NOTE ON IDENTIFIERS

Reference registry

Every entry is a reference to discuss in an RFQ. The internal Zellige Atelier numbering system helps us capture a client's desired color or shape consistently; it is not a Moroccan industry standard.

PRODUCT SKU

ZA-IDEA-SQ-WH

One unique code for a specific design concept (Classic Square + Moroccan White).

COLOR CODE

ZELLIGE-COL-0001

The shared internal color direction (Moroccan White), valid across sixteen shape families.

EDITORIAL REF

ZA-REF-0047

An inspiration/reference object; no stock or workshop relationship implied.

SUPPLIER REF

TO BE CONFIRMED

The actual artisan workshop code, only recorded after validation.

FINAL QUOTE REF

ISSUED PER PROJECT

The written commercial offer that states specifications, price, payment and delivery.

TERMS + ANSWERS AT A GLANCE

Glossary & buyer FAQs

KEY TERMS

ZELLIGE / ZILLIJ

Traditional Moroccan tile and geometric mosaic craft.

BEJMAT

A Moroccan rectangular fired-clay tile, with finish to verify.

FIELD TILE

The main modular tile repeated over a surface.

MOSAIC

A composition of smaller, individually resolved ceramic pieces.

RFQ

A request for a written quotation, not a purchase.

SAMPLE RANGE

Real examples of potential tonal and workmanship variation.

A small planned installation to check color, grout and detail.

COLOR CODE

A Zellige Atelier internal identifier, not a supplier shade.

BATCH

Ceramic products made within one production series.

SUITABILITY

Evidence that the final product fits the specified application.

COMMON BUYER QUESTIONS

Is every tile in stock?

No. These are design enquiries; workshops are investigated after an RFQ.

Are images exact samples?

No. Digital color chips are approximate, and site photography is editorial inspiration.

Is ZELLIGE-COL universal?

No. It is our own color vocabulary, separate from supplier codes.

Can I specify a shower floor?

Only after the specific tile and full wet-area installation system are approved.

Can I get a sample?

Subject to the selected workshop and quote-stage arrangements.

When do I pay?

An RFQ is free. A 50% advance is required after written quote approval and before dispatch; exact due dates are in the accepted offer.

Do you offer a fixed delivery date?

Not in this catalogue. Production and freight dates are confirmed in writing per project.

Why do colors vary?

Handmade glaze and firing produce batch and tile-to-tile movement.

Research & use notes

This catalogue is an editorial buyer guide, not a manufacturer test report. General material descriptions were informed by publicly available craft and installation guidance. The Zellige Atelier collection, references, color names and internal codes are its own project vocabulary.
